Pertinent Topics Discussed by H.C.

When he learned he had been called to the Senate, Duncan Marshall said: "I hope to be useful to the Liberals in any fight they may have with the Tories." That militant, partisan spirit will be useful to himself only; he will not have to prepare new speeches. The chances are, however, that when he gets into the serene atmosphere of the upper chamber, he will decide that the old speeches are out of place and that new ones will have to be of a different tone and temper if he would impress reasonable men like Senators Buchanan and Riley. A listening Senate to command requires logic, reason, sense and sensibility rather than flamboyant oratory.

In calling Norman Lambert to the Senate, Mr. King has cast him for a dual role—he still remains the party organizer. The advantage in this arrangement is that a seat in the Senate gives him a railway pass which he can use while travelling through Canada in his capacity of organizer, thus lessening the drain on the party funds. But it cramps Mr. Lambert's style as a Senator. The Senate is steadily growing into an independent, semi-judicial body, and Mr. Lambert by nature and experience, is admirably qualified to fit into the picture, but how can he exercise these qualifications and remain a party organizer? He can do it in exactly the same way as a Judge who continues his law practice and hears cases in which his partners appear as counsel, or perhaps as litigants.

Mr. King promises to allow full discussion on the power export question. He was always very good that way. Indeed he often objected that the Conservatives did things without ample discussion. On the same day that this announcement appeared, Premier Hepburn was telling a delegation that a deputation from his government had gone to Ottawa to discuss relief grants only to find that the federal government had settled the question, the day before, by order-in-council. "They decide first and dismiss afterwards," he said: "that's the sort of treatment we've been getting from them." It is saddening to think such a charge should be laid from such a source against a statesman who has always felt that discussion, and plenty of it, was the chief desideratum.

University professors with rational views on political and economic questions have developed a remarkable faculty for keeping off the platform and out of the newspapers.

The Rowell Commission is going to cost a lot of money, but it will produce an excellent report voluminous (Continued on Page 3)

Election Necessary To Name Three Councillors; Six Nominated

W. D. Allan and H. B. Ulrich Again Nominated; W. B. Jamison Not Standing For Re-election

For the first time in some years an election will be necessary to decide who will fill the three vacancies on the Vulcan town council. With the expiration of the two-year-terms of Councillors W. D. Allan, H. B. Ulrich and W. B. Jamison, six persons were nominated on Monday for election to the council.

Although W. B. Jamison, due to his absence from town, will not stand for re-election, both Mr. Allan and Mr. Ulrich will seek to be returned to the council. R. R. Martin, F. M. Anderson, S. Wegh and J. B. Morley are the other contestants in the election of the council members. Of these, Mr. Anderson alone has served before on the town council.

The members of the town council who still have one year of their term of office to serve are Mayor Errett King, J. T. Willard, Edward Arney and J. D. Dobbs.

Two trustees, Guy Denbigh and L.H. Jones, were elected to the school board by acclamation. The retiring trustees, who did not stand for re-election, were Dr. W. W. Almond and C. H. Hoskyn. The other members of the school board are F. T. Graham, D. A. McAfee and Mrs. R. Gold.

The election will be held next Monday, Feb. 14th, with the ballot box located at the town office. All those whose names are on the voters' list will be entitled to cast their votes on this day between the hours of 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. The Returning Officer, is A. J. Flood.

High River-Vulcan Double Hockey Bill

(From The High River Times)

The double-header hockey feature Saturday night brought High Schools of Vulcan and High River into action. The girls were first to take the ice with Vulcan winning 5-0. Later the boys reversed this by beating the Vulcan boys 6-4.

Vulcan girls registered their big count in the first period when Mary Parsons outstanding defense star, swept down for two goals, and Lillian Ulrich, snappy forward, added two more, one on an assist from Hanna Clarkson and the second on Mildred Ulrich's pass. In the second period the High River girls held the visitors down to one more goal when Lillian Ulrich again scored, and in the last period there was no score. The visitors were the more aggressive team throughout, showing more experience. But the High River femmes improved with each period, and were swooping down the ice in great style toward the last. Roslyn Sims played a fine game for High River, backchecking and contesting every advance. Fans were wondering what the results would have been if all the girls had played as hard as Roslyn. Would the score have been 10-0, for the home team or would they all have landed in the penalty box. Max Malmberg handled the refereeing very smoothly, and though he warned Marion and a few of the others pretty sternly, he never actually (Continued on Page 4)

Rural Branch A.T.A. Boosts For Library

A meeting of the T.S.L. of the 'Alberta Teachers' Association was held in the Red Cross school on Feb. 2nd. Correspondence which had been received, relating to the founding of a new library in Vulcan to service the town and rural districts surrounding it, was dealt with. The teachers have been greatly encouraged by the many offers of support and co-operation which have been received.

During the course of the evening a very helpful address was given by Miss Edna Orr on the teaching of Phonetics. After this a discussion was held concerning different problems.

The group will hold their next meeting on March 2nd, when they hope to have as their speaker, Col. Tomlinson, head of the Junior Red Cross Society.

It is hoped to again secure the services of Jack Cuthbert and his Braemar Lodge orchestra, the eight-piece aggregation that made such a hit with local dancers on Jan. 28th. Definite announcement regarding the dance will be made later.

A resident of the Vulcan district since 1908, Ashford Frederick Whitney, aged 81 years, died at Vulcan on Saturday, Feb. 5th. Mr. Whitney has farmed in the Reid Hill district since he came to Canada in 1908. He was born in Iowa, U.S.A.

Mr. Whitney was well known throughout the district and was highly respected by all he came in contact with. Unusually active for his age, Mr. Whitney walked from his farm to town on his 80th birthday last year, a remarkable feat for a man of his age. Residents are reminded that the period for purchasing hospital tickets expires on Feb. 15th. After this date it is necessary to pay the fee for the past year as well as for the current year in order to take advantage of the special rates accorded ticket holders.

Mr. J. A. Rushfelt, who has recently returned from a trip down the west coast to California, was a caller at the Advocate office last week and expressed his pleasure at getting back to Alberta. Mr. Rushfelt encountered four days of continuous rain while he was in California and says that he greatly prefers the bracing climate of Alberta.

Fire Loss In Vulcan Reduced To Minimum During Past Year

Only Two Runs Made by Fire Department During 1937; Fire Inspection Is Made by Constable Weale

An exceptionally clean sheet was registered by the town in the matter of fire losses during 1937, the fire brigade only making two runs, to the Pioneer Elevator and to the Marble Coffee Shop. Hardly any damage was done in either of these fires and in one of the instances the flames were out before the fire truck arrived on the scene. A small fire outside the Pioneer Elevator, evidently started by a cigarette butt, was put out with a hand extinguisher. This fire occurred in May and from then to December the brigade was never called out. In December a short circuit in an electric fan caused a small blaze but it was extinguished with a pail of water before the engine arrived.

Nine members form the volunteer fire department, with W. D. Allan as fire chief, and practices are held once a month, usually with a full attendance of members. The fire-fighting system inaugurated some years ago included the building of fire large water cisterns located at strategic points throughout the town. The cistern near the school contains 23,000 gallons of water, the one behind the skating rink held 14,500, the main cistern behind the hotel has a capacity of 30,000 gallons and the cisterns at the elevators and near the Machine Shop each hold about 25,000 gallons. The pumping engine has a capacity of 285 gallons per minute output, which can be trained on the fire through two four-inch hoses. Each of these four-inch hose lines can be changed in a short time to two hoses of two-inch diameter. In addition to the large fire engine, a smaller engine carries the chemical equipment for fighting fires.

The efficiency of the fire department has been demonstrated on many occasions and has been praised by fire adjusters more than once.

ference, delivered an inspiring message on "Missions." The period of worship was conducted by Rev. A. Rowe of High River, who chose as his topic "The Church—In My Life, In the Nation, In All Lands."

Reports were very satisfactory and members expressed pleasure at the work accomplished during the year.

Mixed Bonspiel Starts Next Week

A mixed bonspiel, open to any who care to participate, will be held at the curling rink immediately following the completion of the present square draw, which is scheduled to be finished on the 17th. The fee will be 25 cents for members of the curling club and 50 cents for non-members. This will be the first mixed bonspiel held in Vulcan this winter and a large number of entries are expected.

MUNICIPAL ADMINISTRATION

At this time of year when the financial statements from municipal districts are being presented, one is inclined to appreciate E. L. Gray's recent commendation of municipal administration, and his contention that the powers of local administration might well be extended.

Municipal governments need make no apology to senior governments on the standpoint of efficiency. Within their limited sphere, and with their limited range of taxation, they offer an example of careful administration. In this area, any municipal districts which have been fortunate in crops, have registered that good fortune in tax collections and the clearing up of outstanding debt. Other districts with poor crops, have made praiseworthy attempt to balance receipts and expenditures.

Relatively speaking, the councillors of a municipal district are in big business. They and their secretaries administer large sums of money running up annually in some instances to hundreds of thousands of dollars. They must make decisions in which sound judgment and a measure of business experience are essential. The financial statements indicate that a wise choice of councillors has directed affairs in the town and surrounding municipalities.

One requirement for any councillor is that he must have had reasonable success in managing his personal affairs. This is not to say that all the good men or the popular men of a community are successful in business—far from it.

But the duties of a councillor demand a certain business acumen, an appreciation of finance, and an experience that has taught him that good years must be made to take care of bad years. Practical experience in the fluctuations which visit farm or business life, and the demonstrated ability to meet these and survive, are a good foundation for any civic office. Added to this must be a measure of progressiveness, and a mind open for opportunities.

In the immediate future, in towns and municipal districts it will be necessary for ratepayers to nominate and elect councillors. Future welfare of the district will depend to a great extent on the selection of responsible, capable men.

ENLARGED UNITS

Speaking of social dynamics, the most dynamic subject which can be introduced in rural circles at the moment is the question of enlarged school units. At the convention of school trustees held in Calgary, protest against enlarged units, was in the forefront of discussion. Opposition appeared to be stronger than ever at this convention, probably because there has been a considerable increase in the formation of large units, without the formality of vote-taking in the school districts involved. Arbitrary methods

The Quebec Padlock law is before Ottawa.

Mr. Lapointe said the government would order an investigation into the alleged drilling of fascists in Quebec. Military drill and exercises without authority were contrary to the criminal code.

have not popularized a scheme which made no great appeal to trustees at any time. An argument frequently heard is that under the enlarged plan, school districts which have managed to maintain themselves on a reasonable mill rate, will be obliged to assume heavier obligation to carry impoverished districts which would be included in the large unit. The reply of supporters is that the enlarged unit is a step toward equalization of educational costs.

The rural trustees stand out so conspicuously against the plan, that it would be interesting to have the matter submitted to vote, in order to learn if the ratepayers are solidly behind the trustees. In theory the scheme sounds reasonable. Certainly it is progressive. There are difficulties of transportation and administration which are dwelt upon, and whether these would loom less large in actual operation is a question.

The pros and the antis seem unable to agree or to get together. For example a delegate from the Taber large division, speaking at the trustees' convention, stated (according to the Albertan) that the divisional board had made a mistake in introducing high school work into rural schools. He claimed that the board had spent all its money and would have nothing to work on until June unless the government gave assistance. The attitude taken by the trustees toward the government was caused by the attitude taken by the government to the trustees in regard to the large unit. "It is time that our elected representatives gave us the respectful hearing we give them," he concluded.

Then in the auditor's report of the Taber enlarged unit (from Lethbridge Herald) comes the information that operating expenses in 1936 in the small districts, later included in the large division were $60,570. In 1937 under large unit operation expenses were reduced by $6,688. In addition salaries of all teachers with over two years' experience were increased to the minimum of $840, and principals of two and three-roomed schools correspondingly increased. The large divisions furnish scribes, notebooks, pen ink, pencils, etc. to all pupils. School transportation (or an allowance) is furnished to all pupils more than three miles from the school attended. High school education is thus available, through transportation, for every child residing in the division. Two supervisors of music have been engaged, and a circulating library is another extended facility. Better educational opportunities are resulting, according to the report, and less expenditure.

Although there is no assurance that the presence of the Minister of Education at the Trustees' convention would have clarified the contentious question of enlarged units, it would surely have created a better relationship if he had made the effort to attend. "Pressure of business," is a lame excuse for absenting himself from a gathering so representative of a large element of rural opinion.

DIVIDING THE LOAD

The West has recently been the laggard horse, particularly its prairie provinces. But it is not so many years since it was pulling more than its load. This would suggest, at least to the lay mind, that public funds should be concentrated more than they have been in the past and that services should be more centralized so that the "see-saw" pull of the various "horses" will not be so noticeable in the general forward movement of the whole machine. It is our progress as a united nation with which we should be primarily concerned. And this progress is surely possible with a minimum of hardship to its component parts. We are interested, too, in cutting costs by increasing the efficiency of government machinery.—Canadian Finance.

Though there is some protest about raising radio license fees, they are low compared with many other countries.

U. F. A. To Be Active In Prov. Politics

United Farm Women played a conspicuous part in the convention decision that the U.F.A. would continue actively in provincial politics.

This was the main feature of debate at the convention. An amendment was rejected that the U.F.A. would be affiliated with the C.C.F. provincially, although they will retain this connection in the federal field. Another amendment was defeated which would keep the U.F.A. in provincial politics, "but willing to co-operate with other groups having similar objectives."

According to Norman Priestly, vice-president, members have always been free to do as they wished when a constituency association decided not to contest a seat. They will still retain that privilege.

The decision not to link up with the C.C.F. provincially was received with disappointment by E. J. Garland, Dominion organizer of the C.C.F. "Nothing has been solved," declared Mr. Garland.

Robert Gardiner, president of U. F. A. declared that the C.C.F. had not caught the fancy of the Alberta farmers.

"You must take the mass of the people with you. We, as an organization in Alberta, have been the spearhead of progressive thought. Is this spearhead going so far ahead of the masses that we'll lose contact with them? See that the spearhead is in close contact with the people so that you can take them with you, otherwise you'll only be a small group talking to yourselves."

One section of the convention was plainly in support of affiliation with the C.C.F. in provincial as well as federal politics.

Another section was definitely opposed to lining up with the C.C.F. Still another section favored the U. F. A. getting out of politics altogether and allowing the delegates to use their own judgment in provincial politics. Others favored the continuance of the U.F.A. as a political organization.

At the same time a vote was taken in the U. F. A. section, and the total votes proved the majority in favor of the U.F.A. continuing as political entity.

U.F.W.A. For Health Units

A fine tribute to the work of the health units was paid at the convention. Mrs. Leorno of Red Deer says: "I am fortunate in being under the Red Deer unit," she said. "We cannot estimate the value of the clinics. We as farm women have always received splendid co-operation from those in charge of it."

The convention voted unanimously in recommending an increase in the number of health units. The former stands in favor of family limitation clinics and safe medicine were reaffirmed. A motion was carried advocating investigation of over crowding at Ponoka. The women pledged themselves to immediate boycott of Japanese goods.

The U.F.A. resolution on the Quebec Padlock Law, declared the law had interfered with freedom of speech and assembly "to an extent unheard of in democratic countries," and urged that the Dominion government "safeguard the civil rights and freedom of the individual in Quebec by disallowing" the legislation.

The resolution urging an immediate boycott of Japanese goods in Canada declared that purchases indirectly assisted "in this wholesale slaughter" in China. The resolution dealing with an embargo declared Canada had placed an embargo on export of munitions to Spain, and that an embargo on exports to Japan should be made effective.

The Dominion government was asked to subsidize grain and other farm products "to compare with protection given eastern manufacturers and at the same time to standardize farm products consumed in Canada."

Establishment of a wheat board with greater representation was urged by the delegates who also criticized the policy of the board formerly headed by James R. Murray of Winnipeg. Full accounting of profit and loss and sales by the Murray board was asked.

Full support of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act was voted and the federal government was asked to continue the various water conservation projects even of years of greater rainfall returned immediately.

Endorsation was voted the William Pearce irrigation scheme for the district around Hanna, Alberta. The convention asked the provincial government to have the Marquis and Clifton municipalities brought back into the drouth area for purposes of administration.

It was carried that the government be asked to proceed no farther with enlarged school districts unless approved by the ratepayers of the affected. In trade negotiations with United States it was asked that the least possible restriction be placed on trade and if tariff bore down on any commodity or industry, compensation should be given that industry.

It was declared wide variation in wheat grades existed and the mixing of these contributed to grain spreads. These will be brought before the federal government, which will also be asked to enact legislation requiring that exact weights be made necessary in the sale of cattle at stockyards.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

Uneasiness over the security of Central Europe and the possibility of increased Italian and German intervention in behalf of the Spanish Insurgents, was evident in European and British diplomatic quarters.

The report is that the Canadian Broadcasting Commission exceeded 1936 revenue which was $1,700,000.

Duncan Marshall and Norman Lambert are two new senators.

Dr. Campbell, M.L.A., Lethbridge will sit alone in the Edmonton house as a unity member.

A minimum wage of $30 a month plus board and housing has been set for the Alberta Lumber Industry.

Strathairn Thomson, editor of "Hush" has quit publication after 10 years of success. He will retire to a country property.

There are now 22 large school units in the province. About 43 per cent of rural schools are in the large units. There are 36 liberals and 56 conservatives in the senate.

enough to fill one of the largest pigeon-holes in Ottawa.

In an eastern city after a storm, the snow lay in banks on each side of the street making motor travel very difficult. The Mayor explained that the appropriation was not sufficient to cover extensive snow-clearing. Many citizens suggested reliefers do it. A motion was introduced to that effect, the workers to be paid sixty cents an hour which would be deducted from their allowances. A storm of protest arose. The mover and second received threatening messages by mail and telephone. Three weeks later, a thaw came and practically cleared the obstructions.

What state of mind does this indicate? It is said the protests did not come from reliefers alone; that many of the able-bodied would be glad to do the work, and that the objections came from labor unionists opposed to "dilution" and from Reds opposed to anything that would relieve the taxpayer. That this is correct was substantiated when the motion carried and the President of the Federation of Unemployed stated that his association and trades unions had protested and if they called a strike it would be a strike. "This is the thin edge of the wedge" he said, "to make those on relief do the work of civic employees." We have reached a pretty pass, if men on relief can be induced to strike against being asked to work at sixty cents an hour for shovelling snow. We do it at home for nothing.

We should like to know something more about this Federation. To what extent does it represent the unemployed in numbers and in viewpoint? There are always agitators ready to organize discontented elements. It may be only a small minority of one element but the organizer who comes President presumes to represent the whole body. It is hardly credible that the unemployed would join an organization to resist employment at sixty cents an hour. In this case they would not have taken the job away from civic employees, but from the January thaw.

One of the proposals put before the Rowell Commission favored the abolition of the federal parliament. The nine Legislatures would do the legislating and the Premiers would meet as an executive like the Cabinet. It was put forward by the Nationale Corporatist Association of Quebec, which claims to have over thirty thousand members. It will not be seriously considered by the Commission. Even if it had nine tails a dog would not be wagged by them. After all, the dog is the holding company and the tails are only subsidiaries.

Bankers interviewed as to the probable result of withdrawal from Alberta thought it would be serious, but declined to comment further. There is no reason why we should rush in where they fear to tread, but we think that much depends upon the adequacy of such measures as the Alberta government would take to meet the emergency.

It must be a grievous disappointment to Mr. King to have one of his own Ministers acknowledge that the very basis of confederation is threatened by the strife between some provinces and the federal government. He asked to be returned to power so that he could bring about unity and he had good claim to be the one man who could do it, for nearly all the provinces were Liberal, in fact all but Alberta. Things went wrong, however. Quebec turned out the Liberal government, and the premier of Ontario turned sour. To make matters worse, conditions in some other provinces made them opportunist, and the remedial measures passed by Mr. Bennett were declared ultra vires by the Privy Council as Mr. King feared, or hoped, they would.

He will never admit that he failed, except in private to himself. For his country's sake he wanted to succeed. For his own sake, too. He desired unity as much as Marconi desired wireless, or rather as Simpson desired to produce an anaesthetic. He is not wholly to blame. How could any one man provide tranquility when so many are bent rough house? He was partially to blame, however, in that to give Mr. Bennett a black eye he made no serious attempt to save that legislation from an adverse judgment. Mr. Rowell who probably could have saved it was made a Judge and another counsel selected. Mr. Rowell was then employed, with others whom Mr. Bennett characterized as a parcel of Grits, to go out and try to pick up the shattered remnants and blend them into one harmonious whole.

Trustees Endorse Teachers' Pensions

Providing No Part of Burden Falls on School Districts; Annual Convention Opposes Large Units

Over 500 delegates attended the annual convention of Alberta school trustees, held in Calgary. Almost unanimously the convention approved a resolution that the government suspend further organization of large units until satisfactory results are demonstrated in those already in operation; that no additional large units be put in operation without the approval of those affected having been secured.

The convention approved the establishment by the government of a teachers' pension plan for the province providing that no part of the cost be charged to school districts. It was urged that steps be taken at the first session of legislature to bring an equitable pension scheme into effect. A suggestion was on the basis of 3 per cent. of teachers' salaries.

Ask Bigger Grant
The convention adopted a resolution asking that the government contribute at least 50 per cent. of the education cost. Comparative figures were presented showing that the Alberta government carries the smallest proportionate share. P.E.I. government paid 35 per cent. of the cost of education; Nova Scotia, 30 per cent.; New Brunswick 25 per cent.; Quebec, where there was a different system, nine per cent.; Ontario 20 per cent.; Manitoba 15 per cent.; Saskatchewan about 21 per cent., while Alberta paid 13 per cent. in 1937; British Columbia paid 28 per cent.

The low proportion in Alberta was not to be blamed on the present government for in 1924 the percentage was only 13.3.

Referring to the reduction of library grants at a time when the new curriculum calls for bigger libraries, it was stated that in 1935 only 15,497 had been spent for library books in Alberta, out of a total expenditure of $10,000,000 for education and the rural schools averaged only about $3.00 a month.

Stabilizing Text Books
A resolution, which embodied certain features recommended by various boards, presented the following requests:

1. That the school districts be given one year's notice of the introduction of new textbooks; 2. That the department of education be requested to have a reasonable store of these books on hand at the opening of the schools in September of each year; 3. That the department of education be requested to stabilize the textbooks required in the high schools of this province at the earliest possible date; 4. That the cost to parents and school districts be seriously considered by the department in making changes in text books and in introducing new texts and reference books; 5. That in view of the increasing requirements of the department for the purchase of new books, the library grant abolished some years ago be re-established; 6. That the department of Education be earnestly requested to use every endeavor to have uniform textbooks introduced in the schools of the four western provinces.

Tax Collections
Among the resolutions passed by the convention were the following:

"That municipal secretaries be requested to set aside the requisition for each individual school district its own money is received by them so that each school may have its own money when it is required and where the role is not followed that the school districts affected may be given the right to levy and collect their own taxes."

On Large Units
Questions asked in connection with enlarged units, were answered as follows:

That a school district not in an organized district could not collect arrears of taxes unless authorized to do so by the department of municipal affairs.

The budget for a larger unit will be based on requirements and divided among the municipalities in the district; there would not be a separate budget for each municipality.

If the members of a divisional board refused to act the minister of education had the power to appoint an official trustee, he said.

The department was not in a position to give figures on the operation of the larger units as the year had just closed. He expected that such information would be made available in the near future. The establishment of high schools in the larger unit was the responsibility of the divisional board and not of the department of education.

E. L. Fuller, chief school inspector, said that authority for paying less than the minimum salary to a teacher could be signed by the minister or deputy minister of education. The secretary-treasurers of the larger units were appointed by the division boards who also set the rate of pay.

The School Act provided that the assets of a school district within a larger unit remained the property of the school district but the cash assets were placed in a trust fund used by the divisional board. At the end of three years the school district could demand that the money be spent within the school district.

High River 6 — Vulcan 4

The High School hockey league was never more closely matched than this year, with wins see-sawing amongst the teams, although Turner Valley still holds top place at present.

Fast ice, close checking and well organized play featured Saturday's game when High River boys won over Vulcan 6-4. High River appeared to advantage in the first and second periods, but Vulcan surged out in the third to pile up three goals and show great aggressive strength. The cheer-squad of the local high school developed quite an anxious note as those goals were slapped in.

Colds, Influenza And Pneumonia

Neglected Colds May be Followed by Pneumonia, Early Treatment is Best Safeguard.

While colds, influenza and pneumonia are different conditions, all three may be brought on or made worse by lowered bodily resistance. All three may be prevented in the same ways.

1. Stay away from people with colds.
2. Keep body good condition with right kinds of food, including milk, eggs, fruits and green vegetables (not overeating sweets). Sleep 8 hours of the 24. Daily exercise out of doors. Drink at least 6 glasses of water daily.
3. Train your skin to changes of temperature by different bathing.
4. Wear sensible clothing.
5. Keep your feet warm and dry.
6. Breathe through your nose.
7. Have diseased tonsils bad teeth treated or removed.

8. Wash your hands with soap and water before eating and after toilet. Brush your teeth twice a day.
9. Live and work in well ventilated rooms. (A thermometer at 68 degrees is better than over 70.
10. Sleep with open windows.
11. Cool off gradually. If you are perspiring don't go into a cold breeze to cool.

12. If you keep taking colds in spite of taking care, or if colds hang on, your health needs watching, see a doctor.

Pneumonia is a lung inflammation usually starting with chill followed by high fever and heaviness in the chest. Pneumonia places a great strain on heart and lungs.

The special significance of influenza lies in the fact that it often paves the way for a fatal attack of pneumonia. During an epidemic of influenza, the number of pneumonia cases and the number of deaths from pneumonia may be increased to two times usual figures.

Pneumonia figures relating to Alberta show that in 1934 there were 309 deaths, plus 141 from influenza (usually ending in pneumonia) making a total of 450.

The latest available figures are for 1935 when there were 450 pneumonia deaths plus influenza 194, making a total of 644. About two-thirds of these were men. The death rate in all types of pneumonia is from 20 to 35 per cent of all those who become infected.

Within the last ten years great advances have been made in the study of influenza cases, also in different

Wanted: A Market for Flour

IT MAY BE SAID with truth that it would be better for Canada if the British market would buy all our wheat in the form of flour. We then could give employment to as many persons as are now employed in the milling of our wheat in Britain. But it cannot be said that this would be better for the Motherland for she now has within her shores an industry which in part offsets the disadvantage of not growing enough wheat and other grains to feed her people.

THE CANADIAN cotton-textile industry is similar. The Weather Man permits us to grow no cotton even though we recently have learned to grow tobacco. But we have within the Dominion a cotton-textile industry which employs more than twenty thousand persons. And they are employed with fewer layoffs than in most other industries. Dominion Textile Company Limited is a part of this industry which helps to offset the fact that ours is a country whose industries often have sharp ups and downs from season to season.

THE COTTON-TEXTILE INDUSTRY in Canada is a factor in maintaining the Dominion as a cohesive whole. No finer cotton goods—or cotton-rayon—are produced anywhere than in the mills of this company.

types of pneumonia and treatment. The object of pneumonia serum is to supply a sufficient concentration of type specific antibodies in the blood serum to ensure an early victory of the body in its struggle.

Effective serums adapted to the various types of pneumonia are now available. While there is variability in the effectiveness of the respective serums, it has been demonstrated that taken as a whole they will if properly administered in the early stages, cut lobar pneumonia death rate nearly in half. Importance of early typing and use of serum cannot be over emphasized.

Strike Against Gasoline Prices

What would happen in the United States and Canada if motor vehicles were taken off the highways and streets, was indicated not long ago in Switzerland where a one-day strike was staged against increasing gasoline taxes.

Notwithstanding favorable weather, according to a report of the American Petroleum Institute's industries committee, traffic was reduced to a minimum. Practically all private cars were kept off the roads. Those which did appear bore placards reading "Driving because of Necessity." A few families appeared on the roads with horses hitched to their automobiles.

Every type of business suffered. Heaviest losers, of course, were the hotel owners whose business is so dependent on the tourist trade. Imagine, if you can, the stagnation that would afflict business if motor vehicles were withdrawn from the highways for a single day.

An astronomical coincidence that occurs only once in quite a number of years happens this year February when there will be no phase known as the new moon. There was a new moon on January 31, and the next phase will be March 2nd. The recent occasions when this has occurred were the years 1870, 1889, 1900 and 1911.
